

REMEMBERING
Kathleen Huddleston

September 26, 1966 - May 29, 2014

Kathleen Karen Huddleston passed away Thursday the 29th of May, 2014 after a long and courageous battle with breast cancer. She is survived by her husband, her mother and her brother. Kathleen was the most caring and giving person I have ever known. Her selfless dedication to the welfare and the lives of others was without measure. She fought her battle with cancer with dignity and unwavering strength and never let on to others the struggles she was having. She was a good woman, a loving wife, a devoted daughter and the pillar of strength for those with disabilities in our community, many of which she personally helped. Just as she fought the disease in silence I believe she wished to pass in silence. I ask that everyone keep her in their memories and cherish those memories and celebrate her life as she shared it with you, every day that the memories come.

I love you baby and miss you deeply and the only comfort I have is in knowing that you will walk with me in my heart as I finish this journey called life and we can be together again.
