Tribute from Doug Killey

Relation: Colleague

Dear Janet: We're very sorry to hear of Bill's death. He was a key person at AECL in working with a series of hydrogeologists and geochemists on studies of contaminant movement in groundwater and surface water flow systems, developing tracer techniques and sample analysis methods to determine transport properties. Bill started this work in the early 1960s, when the field of contaminant hydrogeology was in its infancy and continued contributing to its development over the rest of his career at Chalk River. Marg and I very much appreciated your friendship and hospitality in Deep River, and we both have vivid memories of the peaches that you and Bill brought back for us from the Niagara peninsula - they were the best!
